City names Assistant Director for Bond Program project delivery

After an extensive national search, City Manager Sheryl Sculley this week appointed Jorge A. Pérez as Assistant Director for Project Delivery in the City of San Antonio's Capital Improvements Management Services Department (CIMS).

Pérez begins his new job Monday, Feb. 2.

He will serve a vital role in management of the City's 2007-2012 Bond Program and the Capital Improvements Program projects to include all phases of planning, design, and construction. Pérez will oversee four CIMS divisions, including Horizontal (streets and drainage) and Vertical (buildings and parks) project management, Environmental Management, and Technical Services (design, surveying, and construction inspection).

"Jorge brings more than 25 years' experience of successfully planning and delivering business- and project-related architectural and engineering programs," said Mike Frisbie, P.E., City Engineer and CIMS Director. "His leadership will be essential as the City moves toward substantial completion of the $550 Million Bond Program by June 2012."

Pérez has a Master of Business Administration and Master of Arts in Procurement & Acquisitions Management from Webster University in St. Louis. He also has a Bachelor of Mechanical Engineering from the University of Puerto Rico with certification in Problem-Solving / Conflict Resolution Mediator.

Most recently, Pérez was vice president and general manager at URS Corp. in San Antonio. URS Corp. is a full-service architecture and engineering consulting firm. Pérez is a board member or volunteer at numerous community and civic organizations.

“I look forward to bringing my educational background and hands-on capital outlay program and project-management knowledge, combined with my experience in both the public and private sectors, to the City of San Antonio,” he said. “I am excited about joining the CIMS team and building a great San Antonio.”
